Real Money in France
Brave Swedish Flier
Tuning Up at Houston
Kahn Saw It Coming

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE French settle down courageously to the drastic new money rate. Four-fifths of its value is cut from their money as a result of a war WHICH THEY WON. They face that situation bravely.

* * *

IN place of paper money, meaning little to peasants and working people, the French again will see gold and silver coins in circulation.

The grosse piece, size and weight of our silver dollar, will not come back. Worth five francs before the war, it would be worth 25 francs now. But 10-franc silver pieces, worth 40 cents, will be coined, and the French will feel that they are working for REAL MONEY.

* * *

STABILIZING the franc is a boon to all Europe, ending financial disorder, that has lasted 10 years.

It is a great achievement by Poincare, worthy successor of Thiers, Turgot, Necker, Sully and a long list of brilliant French statesmen.

* * *

AN Italian message chooses the right words, "valorous pilot," for the Swedish aviator, Lieut. Einar Lundborgh. He landed his plane on the ice floe where Gen. Nobile was stranded, took that brave officer to safety, went back to the rescue and as himself stranded in Nobile's place by the overturning of his plane.

* * *

SOME cacophony in Houston's preliminary orchestra tuning. But harmony will come. Governor Smith sends word that he hasn't changed his mind on prohibition. The people like a man to stay put.

* * *

SENATOR REED of Missouri, in a strong statement, says he opposed the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act, as President Wilson did, as "an invasion of the police powers of the state."

But, with prohibition in the Constitution and on the statute books Senator Reed would enforce the law. So would any other good citizen.

* * *

OTTO H. KAHN says foolish excess of inexperienced stock gamblers are over. They have learned a useful lesson and national values will proceed to establish themselves on a sound basis, and says Mr. Kahn, "Optimistic conclusions based solely on the progress of America are sound."

* * *

WITH Mr. Kahn it is not "prophesying after the event."

Before that recent unpleasant break Mr. Kahn advised friends that trouble was coming.

* * *

MR. BLOOM, specialist in sports wear, has his hands and fingers insured for amounts totaling $500,000. Loss of his right hand would cost the insurance company $375,000.

* * *

IF that's the value of Mr. Bloom's hand, what would be the value of Michael Angelo's right hand, that painted the Sistine Chapel, modeled the Pieta, hewed David and Moses out of solid marble and made the plans of Saint Peter's?

* * *

SENATOR MOSES and Mrs. Willebrandt say Hoover will be elected overwhelmingly by the votes of women. "For every deluded wet Republican who votes for Smith there will be two dry Democratic women who will jump over the fence for Hoover," says Senator Moses.

* * *

PLENTY of women will vote for Hoover, but don't overlook the fact that millions of women will vote for Governor Smith, and with him nominated wouldn't vote for anybody else, not even the Angel Gabriel.

Women will have a great deal to do in deciding this campaign. And it won't be one-sided.

FLOUR manufacturers, including Washburn-Crosby and Red Star, organized a $50,000,000 combination, largest flour milling concern in the world.

That's in the line of modern methods. Big units, small overhead, powerful marketing.

This news will interest farmers and make them wish somebody could show them how to organize. The first thing, and absolutely necessary, is to organize and intensify methods of production. An old-fashioned blacksmith could not compete with a modern automobile factory.

AMERICAN KILLED

Band of Guerillas Sought for Dynamiting National Railways Train

Mexico City, June 26—Federal troops were scouring the hills between Bernal and Queretaro today for a band of Guerillas believed to have been responsible for the dynamiting of a train of the National Railways which resulted in the death of seven persons, one an American.

The American killed was Andrew Robinson, the locomotive engineer. The other victims were Mexicans. Twenty passengers were injured. The explosion derailed the locomotive, baggage car and two coaches.

Robinson had lived in Mexico 25 years. He was the only American employed as a locomotive engineer by the National Railways.

KOON TO FACE MURDER TRIAL IN TWO WEEKS

Judge Scofield Will Occupy Bench When Hearing Opens July 9

EXPECT INSANITY PLEA

Accused Slayer of Henry Foos to Fight for Life

In less than two weeks Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, will go on trial in common pleas court here charged with the murder of Henry Foos, aged farmer in his home north of Marion.

The trial will open at 9 o'clock on the morning of July 9, Judge George B. Scofield will be on the bench.

With almost two weeks before the trial opens, attorneys for the defense and state said today that they were practically ready to go to court with the case. Koon will be defended by Homer E. Johnson, Marion attorney, who was appointed by the court as defense counsel. Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann and Police Prosecutor Carter Patton will represent the state.

May Plead Insanity

That the Marion County court might be the scene of another murder defense based on a plea of insanity, was intimated today by Attorney Johnson. Whether or not this will be the basis of his defense is problematical, however, as Johnson has not stated positively that he will attempt to prove Koon insane.

Although Prosecutor Wiedemann has not stated publicly that he will ask for the death penalty for Koon, it is considered likely that the prisoner will be fighting for his life when he enters the court room. Koon is charged with "murder and murder while attempting to commit and committing a robbery." This is synonomous to a first degree murder charge and the penalty is electrocution.

A jury's recommendation for mercy is probably the only thing that will save the prisoner from the death chair, in case he is found guilty.

Draw Venire

Summons have been served by Sheriff James Deal and his deputies for a special venire of 65 prospective jurors from which the murder jury of 12 persons will be impaneled.

In the meantime Koon is being held in the county jail. He has been confinded there since his arrest near the Marion county fairgrounds within an hour after the attack on Mr. Foos in his home.

When Koon goes to trial he will be faced with his confession of the attack, alleged by city and county officials to have been made shortly after his arrest. Whether or not Attorney Johnson will

SMITH WILL GET OHIO ON SECOND BALLOT

Senator Pomerene Tells Delegation to Use Own Judgment

Houston, Tex., June 26—Former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, "favorite son" presidential candidate, has virtually released the Ohio delegation from its pledge of support, it was learned today.

"We have a perfect understanding with Senator Pomerene," said H. G. Brunner, state chairman. "I talked with him about the entire situation and he said that he wished the delegation to use its best judgment.

"Ohio's entire vote, perhaps with one exception, will be cast for him on the first ballot. After that 45 votes may go to Governor Smith."

The statement apparently disposed of rumor that most of the delegation would go to Smith on the first ballot and that Pomerene would officially withdraw. A caucus today may reveal change in the lineup.

Having completed its organization in record time, the Ohio delegation represented as one of the most harmonious here—and determined to maintain harmony in the convention.

Sidewalks of New York Relaid In Houston And Crowds Are Following Mayor Walker; Jimmy Found To Be Great "Guy" By Southern Delegates

No Compulsion Necessary As Texans Are Captured by Personality

BY ROLAND KREBS
Star Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON, TEX., June 26—They've rolled up the sidewalks of New York and relaid them in Houston.

Follow the crowd and you'll find that the crowd is following Jimmy Walker, the mayor of New York, the pal of Al Smith and, since he arrived here, the pal of the south. Jimmy's a pally guy. He calls himself a "guy." In another week the governor of South Carolina probably will be calling the governor of North Carolina a a "guy."

Houston knew Jimmy was coming and, knowing that Governor Smith liked him, was prepared to make itself like him, too. No compulsion was necessary. Houston today likes Jimmy Walker because he's Jimmy Walker.

Everyone tried to—and seemingly did—get up there and shake hands with Jimmy.

"They can't convict me of picking pockets in this town," the mayor laughed. "Both my hands are in somebody else's hands all the time." And don't think they weren't.

The mayor visited the spacious—spacious until the throngs trailing him got inside—Al Smith headquarters and got his delegate's badge. Most of Houston went with him from room to room.

A newspaper correspondent suggested that a few remarks from his honor on the convention situation would be highly appreciated.

MAY NAME AL ON FIRST COUNT OF CONVENTION

Boom for Arkansas Senator Growing by Leaps and Bounds

HARMONY IS WATCHWORD

Short and Snappy Meet Seen; Law Enforcement To Be Pledged

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Sam Houston Hall, Houston, Tex., June 26—The first session of the Democratic national convention lasted barely 20 minutes today.

Assembling in Houston's great new convention hall at 1:15 o'clock (Marion time) the 1,100 delegates were in session only long enough to listen to the formal reading of the call, and to hear Mayor Oscar F. Holcombe bid them welcome to Houston. Then a recess was taken until 8:30 o'clock tonight when the temporary organization will be effected, and Claude G. Bowers will deliver the keynote speech.

* * *

Sam Houston Hall, Houston, Tex., June 26—The rumble of a Smith band wagon bearing the legend "Smith-and-Robinson" was heard in the offing today as the thousand-odd delegates to the Democratic national convention overtired their way into this huge mountain of pine and bunting at Houston erected for them almost overnight.

Of the Smith part of the ticket, no one had any doubt whatever—not even the bitterest last-ditcher from the ranks of anne southern creek.

The movement to nominate the New York governor on the first ballot was growing as the delegates assembled for the first session. A careful figure analysis showed that barring last-minute upsets he will have more than 700 votes on the initial ballot, with several of the favorite sons teetering on the fence over the question of withdrawing early and letting it go with a whoop on the first roll call.

Robinson Boom Grows

As for the Robinson part of the ticket, the movement undeniably was growing by leaps and bounds this morning to name the Arkansas senator early in the proceedings.

The Tammany people were for him, his senatorial colleagues cautioned through a dozen delegations were hamstringing him, and within the next three days there probably will be enough votes lined up to insure his nomination.

The cry was everywhere to make this convention "short and snappy"—not Madison Square Garden. The heat, of which Houston has plenty, contributed to the desire to wind things up as quickly as possible. The principal barrier seemed to be the prohibition plank in the platform but here again was the important device on the part of leaders to avoid any lengthy arguments. A short and snappy fight and a strong law enforcement plank that will be acceptable to the wets and still will mollify the drys was the goal.

Harmony Watchword

The curtain went up today upon a Democratic national convention set upon ratifying the nomination of Governor Smith adopting a platform that will placate all but the extreme outer fringe of radicalism on the prohibition question and adjourning as quickly as possible.

The age-old political cry of harmony was the watchword, and for once the

Prodigal Declares Dewey Stolen From Browning

New York, June 26 — Peaches and Daddy are in court again. The youthful Frances Heenan Browning, who is still a minor although two years have passed since her romance with the elderly Browning, has started a fight for her dower rights.

Through her attorney, former surrogate Daniel F. Cohalan, Peaches today applied to Supreme Court Justice Lydon for the appointment of her mother Carolyn M. Heenan as guardian ad litem.

Mrs. Heenan was appointed by Justice Lydon as Peaches' guardian.

MANY SEEK HOME

Chillicothe, June 26—Partisans campaigning for the convention to be held next year featured the opening of the second day of the annual meeting of the United Spanish War Veterans here today. Athens, Circleville, Portsmouth and Middleport are the cities seeking the 1929 meeting.

KEYNOTE SPEECH SET FOR TONIGHT

Houston, Tex., June 26—The convention will meet at noon today in the hall, after temporary organization, opening prayer and the reading of the call. Keynote speech will be delivered by Claude G. Bowers, of Indiana, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Chairman of the committee on credentials will report at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Airport Survey Will Be Made Here

CITY COUNCIL COMMITTEE TO VISIT FIELDS

Legislators Favorably Impressed With Plea of Junior Chamber of Commerce

LEASING IS SUGGESTED

Williams, Prettyman and Schneider Named on Investigating Body

Nothing in the spirit of co-operation was lacking when members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce last night carried to the city council their fight for a municipal landing field for the city. On the contrary committees appointed by President Murphy to investigate the proposal, announced at once that they would meet with the representatives of the chamber at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning to visit the various sites being considered for an airport.

Pointing to the visit of several planes here within the past few weeks, of others that flew above the city but did not land because there was no landing field, and to a plane which sustained a damaged wheel in landing north of the city, last week, Rhu Cheney, chairman of the airplane committee of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, declared it was not too soon to consider the securing of a landing field.

Now is the time to establish a field if the city is to hope securing any of the mail and freight airplane routes which are now being created, Cheney declared.

Points to Field

In presenting the physical phase of the question to council, Charles Whysall, another member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, said a field 2,500-foot square is recommended by the department of commerce as the most satisfactory size for a landing field. This, he explained, would include about 100 acres and would permit landing and taking off from practically any direction.

A field belonging to the Harding Memorial Association and lying directly across the road from the memorial, Whysall said, had been selected as having the most requisites for a success-

EXAMINE JURORS FOR HOPPE MURDER TRIAL

Make Tentative Selections of Eight Men and Three Women First Day

Toledo, June 26—With 11 tentative jurors, eight women and three men, seated in the jury box, the trial of Charles J. Hoppe, 28, alleged self-confessed slayer of seven-year-old Dorothy Sielaginski, was to resume here today. The 11 prospective jurors were selected yesterday out of 45 examined. Their acceptance, however, was only temporary and belief was expressed that many more in the panel would be called before opening addresses to the jury begin.

Rumors that the accused man would plead guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the court were dispelled at the close of yesterday's session when defense counsel announced that neither Hoppe, his wife nor brothers would consent to this move.

THOMPSON QUITS RACE FOR SENATE

Candidate Gives Up Personal Ambitions for Republican Party Unity

Cleveland, June 26—With a plea for united ranks among Ohio Republicans, Col. Carmi A. Thompson's withdrawal as a candidate for the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Frank B. Willis, was on record here today.

Thompson's formal withdrawal statement follows:

"In a talk I made before the Republican Women of Ohio in Cleveland on June 2, I said whatever our preferences may be, whatever personal ambitions we may have, let us keep in mind that the greatest good for the greatest number, depends on an overwhelming Republican victory in November."

Seeks Harmony

"The Republicans of Ohio have just emerged from a spirited primary contest which apparently has left traces of bitterness in many places. A continuation of the strife of the foundation laid in the April primaries, can serve no useful purpose and may endanger party success in the fall election. For this reason, I have concluded to put aside my personal ambitions for something which I prize more highly—party harmony and party unity, and am therefore withdrawing from the race for senator to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Frank B. Willis.

"A united Republican party in this state in the November election means a successful Republican ticket for national, state and county offices and a continuation of the principles of the Republican party under which we have become the most prosperous people in the world."

FIRST SESSIONS OF STATE TEACHERS' MEETING OPEN

Cedar Point, June 26 — First sessions of the eighty-first annual summer meeting of the Ohio State Teachers' Association were to be held here today. Several prominent educators were scheduled to make addresses and a parent-teacher organization discussion also was on the program.

A. E. Claggett, superintendent of Oakwood school, Dayton, was to speak at the afternoon session.

EXPECT 600 TO ATTEND MEET IN OCTOBER

Annual Conference of Cincinnati Branch, M. E. Missionary Group, Announced

WORK ON PROGRAM

Mrs. B. L. George and Mrs. John H. Clark Completing Arrangements

What will undoubtedly be one of the largest missionary conclaves ever held in Marion will be the annual conference of the Cincinnati Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church to be held at the Epworth M. E. church the last week in October. An attendance of about 600 delegates and guests, is expected.

Announcement of the approaching meeting was made today by Mrs. B. L. George, wife of the Reverend Mr. George, pastor at Epworth, and Mrs. John H. Clark who make up the general committee in charge of arrangements for entertaining the conference.

Not Completed

The program has not been completely outlined. About 30 of the 750 missionaries supported by the 11 branches of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society are expected here for the meeting. There will also be a number of "nationalists" or natives from countries in which missionary work is in progress under direction of the M. E. church.

The Cincinnati branch includes all of Ohio, as well as parts of the West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee conferences. The Woman's Foreign Missionary society is one of the most powerful organizations of its kind in the world. It is divided into 11 working branches, supports 750 missionaries in foreign countries and has a yearly budget of $4,000,000.

EXPLOSION IN PLANT KILLS FOUR PERSONS

Unable to Identify Victims of Blast in New England Fireworks Company

Thompsonville, Conn., June 26 — Four persons were killed, three of them young boys, when an explosion razed the plant of the New England Fireworks Company on Brainard rd., in the western outskirts of the town today.

None of the victims had been identified positively some hours after the explosion. Their bodies were blown to pieces by the force of the explosion.

Reports reaching here stated that a number of homes near the plant were wrecked and that trees and small buildings were blown down by the terrific blast.

The explosion, the cause of which was not known here, originated in a group of small wooden buildings on one side of the main buildings of the plant.

First reports said that three boys and two men, all employes, were killed.

The injured were being cared for near the scene.

The countryside near the plant was covered with debris. Many windows in the homes of employes of the fireworks company were smashed by the air concussion, the report stated.

MINORITY HOLDERS SEEK TO HALT GIANT MERGER

New York, June 26 — A step permanently to enjoin the proposed giant merger of Dodge Brothers Inc., and the Chrysler Corporation was expected to be taken today when legal representatives of the holders of minority rights in the former argue in the supreme court to have the temporary injunction obtained yesterday made permanent. Supreme Court Justice George V. Mullan was to hear the arguments. An early decision is expected. The writ yesterday stopped the merger at the eleventh hour.

POLICE TO ENFORCE PARKING ORDINANCE

Officers To Clamp Lid Down On Time Parking in Downtown District

Leniency with motorists who park longer than one hour in the downtown district, will cease to be a virtue with the police after tonight, Chief of Police J. W. Thompson, announced today. The small oval signs calling attention to the one hour parking, were placed on the downtown streets, two weeks ago, but no immediate enforcement of the ordinance was ordered by the chief.

Wednesday morning, however, will see the lid clamped down tight on the time parking, the chief declared today. "We have hesitated to order a strict enforcement of the time limit parking," the chief said, "for the reason that that section of the ordinance has not been enforced during the winter and spring months. The signs have been on the street long enough now, I believe, to start enforcing the law and I will instruct the patrolmen to start marking cars Wednesday morning."

Because of the lighter traffic during the winter and spring months, the time limit section of the traffic ordinance is not enforced. With the coming of warmer weather, however, and with a corresponding increase in the number of motorists seeking parking space, the time limit parking is put into effect.

The hour parking will prevail on Center st., from Oak st. to High, on Prospect st., from Church st. to the first alley north of Center, on Main from the railroads to the second alley south of Church st., and on State st., from Center st. south to Church st.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Robert W. Stewart, Oil Magnate, Demands Speedy Trial

Washington, June 26—Robert W. Stewart, oil magnate indicted for perjury in connection with his testimony before the Senate Teapot Dome committee, entered a plea of not guilty on arraignment before the district supreme court today.

Stewart demanded a speedy trial, which was set for October 8.

MIDROAD PLANK COMPROMISE IS STRATEGY PLAN

Democrats' Scheme to Give Both Wets and Drys Equal Chance

TO PLEDGE ENFORCEMENT

Final Work of Dressing Up Short Platform Under Way Late Today

Houston, Tex., June 26—A new plan of strategy was evolved by Democratic platform drafters today to head off the threatened stormy row over the prohibition plank.

The idea is this:

Let the wets bring before the resolutions committee a dripping plank calling for modification of the Volstead Law.

Let the militant drys counter with a proposal lauding the Eighteenth amendment to the skies.

At this point, according to the scheme of those leaders who are seeking to make harmony the watchword of the convention, both sides will be counselled to reconcile their divergent views through the adoption of a middle-of-the-road plank pledging the party to strict law enforcement.

Would Condemn G. O. P.

The compromise plank, as suggested by Smith leaders, would condemn the Republican party for laxity in enforcing the Eighteenth amendment and would place the Democrats on record as staunchly favoring the enforcement of all provisions of the constitution.

Further, it was represented as having the approval of Governor Smith. He is said to have suggested it to his leaders here through one of his closest friends and advisers.

Of course, the compromise may not deter the radical wets or drys from carrying a fight to the floor but its backers hope it will take the sting out of their fight.

Approve Dry Plank

That the southern drys, under the leadership of Governor Dan Moody of Texas, are not going to be satisfied with anything less than an open endorsement of the Eighteenth amendment was manifested after an early morning conference in Moody's headquarters.

ROBBERS GET $7,000 IN NEWSPAPER PLANT

Two Men Hold Up Cashier in Office of San Antonio Light

San Antonio, Tex., June 26—Two men with guns entered the office of the San Antonio Light newspaper office here this morning, held up the cashier and got away with $7,000 in cash.

A reward of $200 has been offered.

The police have strong clews and arrests are expected.

The robbery came just as the cashier was opening his safe for beginning the business of the day.

The men were not masked. No shots were fired.

Hoover Turns To Radio For Inside Dope On Democrats

WASHINGTON, June 26—Herbert Hoover turned on his radio receiver today and prepared to get as much political edification as possible out of the Democratic national convention at Houston.

The Hoover camp will keep quiet while the Democrats are selecting their leaders. The G. O. P. will make no bid for the front pages for several weeks to come.

Hoover now plans to go west about July 20 and the only contemplated action prior to that time is the selection of east and west managers, posts probably to go to Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and James W. Good, of Iowa.

If the Republican campaign goes according to present plans it will be a short and snappy drive. Real action is expected to start about the middle of August or the first of September, after Hoover sounds the Republican call to arms in California with his address at the notification ceremonies.

Excitement Fails To Stir Delegates From New York

HOUSTON, June 26—The Al Smith "brown derby" splashed into the convention mechanism today, creating excitement among everybody but the New York delegation.

Young Texans grabbed for the derbies when the vendors brought them out in the wake of the arrival of Smith's own cohorts.

Other delegates started or observed, but still the New Yorkers didn't.

Indeed, the entire Tammany delegation seemed to step out of the character assigned to it by long tradition.

A Texas band played "Dixie" while the New York delegation sat silent. A Texas band played "Sidewalks of New York" with vim, but the Gothamites didn't even cut loose.

In all the oldtime of the conventions with enthusiastic demonstrations, official rounds, all kinds of concessions, and all kinds of demonstrations, cold and cruel, the New Yorkers displayed little interest.

The delegates coming for the Texans were disappointed and the Texans were grieved.

But the Houstonians exhorted every living up to their promise to bring the most exciting delegation of all to Houston and keep it that way—until after "Al" Smith is nominated.

SMITH'S MANAGERS CONSIDER ALLIANCE

Formal Offer for Agreement Presented by Farm Organization Heads

Houston, Tex., June 26—A formal offer of an alliance between leaders of the farm relief and Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, was taken under consideration by the Smith managers today.

The proposal, carefully framed by a score of farm organization heads, was presented by Ed A. O'Neal of Alabama and Chester H. Gray of Washington, both legislative representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation. It was received by Judge Joseph F. Proskauer and George W. Van Namee, generalissimo of the Smith forces.

Nothing definite resulted from the conference. A further effort will be made to bring the forces together, it was said by the farm leaders.

With considerable opposition developing among eastern Democratic leaders to a blanket endorsement of the principles contained in the far famed McNary-Haugen Bill, a fight on the equalization fee appeared inevitable.

The New York congressional delegation already had disclosed a wide difference of opinion on this particular method of farm relief. Farm spokesmen were counting heavily upon the probability of Sen. Robert Wagner going on the resolutions committee. He fought for the bill in the last congress.

Criticism doesn't always improve men. It depends on the man.

ROAD BUILDING WORK IN COUNTY RESUMED

Poor Weather Conditions Hold Up Contractors on New Pikes

Work of placing gravel on the Likens-Pole rd. was to be started today. Although the road has been graded for several days grading operations have been held up on account of wet weather. Brady & O'Connell are the contractors.

The Likens-Pole rd. is the only new road in the county on which work will be resumed today. Grading on three other new roads in the county has been completed and contractors are waiting for favorable weather to continue work.

The Pole Lane end of the road was graded today when work was resumed.

County roads in the vicinity of Meeker are being surface treated this week, according to Cecil R. Leavens, county surveyor. Roads in the vicinity of Waldo, Mount Gilead and Green Camp have been treated with tar. On Thursday work will be started on roads in the vicinity of Green Camp which require resurfacing with asphalt.

NEW MAIN PLAN MAY CREATE OBJECTIONS

Council to Investigate Proposed Digging Up of Streets

That the Marion Water Co will encounter serious objection when they begin the construction of a 20 inch water main on Silver and Leader sts. became evident at the meeting of city council last night, when George Whysall, general manager of the company, announced that he had been informed by City Solicitor Geran that there would be objections to the company digging up either of the two streets.

It was explained by Mr. Whysall that the building of the 20 inch main is provided for in the company's contract with the city but if there was going to be any objections, the company wanted to know it before the work was started.

The city feels that the work would be objected to on the grounds that to dig a trench through the center of the streets would spoil the fine asphalt surfaces and suggested that the line be laid under the sidewalk on the south side of Silver st., and on the west side of Leader st. Mr. Whysall objected to this plan, saying the danger of serious damage to property would be greater in event the main should blow up at any time. He also said Silver st might become a commercial street some day and the line under the sidewalk would prevent merchants from using the space under the walk.

The water main will enter the city on Silver st. and go south on Leader to Owens and east on Owens to Oak. An investigation of the matter will be made by council within the next two weeks, President Murphy assured Mr. Whysall, and a report would be ready at the next meeting on July 9.

Massillon Pastor Reads Service in Presence of 75 Guests

Martel, June 26—Miss Lois Weidemaier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Weidemaier, was married Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of her parents north of here to George Parker Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins Williams of Lakewood. The service was read by Rev. Stocker of Massillon in a lovely garden setting of palms and white lilies arranged in the yard. The bride wore a gown of white taffeta trimmed in Chantilly lace. Her veil was of white tulle gathered with orange blossoms and held with a band of real lace. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and orchids with a shower of lilies of the valley.

Preceding the ceremony, a program of wedding music was played by Mrs. Bardsley, of Cleveland, followed by two vocal solos, "O Promise Me," sung by Jean Weidemaier, and "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," by Miss Ruth Christman. The bridal party took their places at the improvised altar to strains of the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin."

Miss Ruth Christman, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and little Jean Weidemaier, another cousin, was trainbearer. The brideemaid wore an orchid georgette dress with satin slippers to match, hose and hat of pink and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and pale blue delphinium. The trainbearer wore a ruffled dress of light green and carried a basket of flowers on her arm.

Lunch was served to about 75 guests at tables decorated with orange blossoms and white candles tied with pink, laid in the yard among palms and flowers under a pink and white canopy. Wedding cake in white boxes tied with pink ribbon were the favors.

The bride wore for going away a coat of purple velvet with hat and dress of orchid and accessories to match. After their trip through the east, Mr. and Mrs. Williams will make their home on Granger av., Lakewood.

Indigestion Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One teaspoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Do learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.—Adv.

Dempsey Go With Risko In Sight?

Baker Boy Consents To Meet Jack This Fall

NEW YORK, June 26—Abe Yeager, public relations counsel for Promoter Humbert Fugazy admitted today that Johnny Risko has broken down and confessed that he will consent to a meeting with Jack Dempsey next fall in the event that he is able to disperse the menacing black shadow of George Godfrey Wednesday night at Ebbets Field.

Only two minor details are unsettled: Risko must first beat Godfrey and Dempsey must come out of retirement. Everything else has been arranged.

NAPOLEON JACK DORVAL and Pierre Charles, two of the younger set who hope to graduate into Commodore Rickard's senior eliminations next fall, met tonight at the Queensboro stadium where they were scheduled to trade thumps last Tuesday.

JACK KEARNS has made it plain that there will be no Mickey Walker-Leo Lomski fight in New York unless both men come in at catch-weights. That was his understanding, Kearns says, when he gave Humbert Fugazy permission to go ahead with the match. Fugazy had intended to promote it early next month at Ebbets Field.

The boxing commission last week ruled that Walker cannot appear here unless he makes the middleweight limit of 160 pounds. And thus another "natural" seems to have been effectively faded.

RAY SNYDER WINNER OF FAST BOUT WITH AL HINES, COLUMBUS

Judges' Decision in Main Go Not at All Pleasing to Writer

BY KARL K. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

Lou Janita, Columbus, and Martin Mazzio, Cleveland, two of the fastest boys to appear on a local fight card this season, fought to an eight-round draw at Crystal Lake Park last night before a crowd estimated at 500, including the fighters, managers, a band and orchestra.

At this point the writer will pull a Davis J. Walsh by differing with the judges on the outcome of this bout. As far as I could figure out the Cleveland lad received the best of the argument. At the best, all my score card could award the Columbus mauler was three rounds with Mazzio taking four. The other was a draw.

Janita Floored

However, the decision of the judges came after and not before the bout so did not in any way affect the ability of the fighters. Mazzio opened the fight with a flash of speed which he failed to equal in the remaining seven. He floored Janita once with a fast punch to head.

The Clevelander was down twice during the fight but not from the punches administered by Janita. He was back on his feet before Referee Abel could start the count so could not have been hurt to any great extent.

Both boys went into the fray like the bantam title was at stake. Each put every ounce of strength into his punches and a knockout was not far distant at any time.

Hines Game Kid

Some fighters, although outclassed, can put on a great exhibition for the benefit of fans making an otherwise featureless bout interesting. Such was the case in the semi-final affair between Ray Snyder and Al Hines of Columbus. Snyder carried the decision by a wide margin.

Hines was a game kid all the way through, his chin being a constant target for Ray's punches. Punishment taken in the opening rounds sapped his strength considerably and he was unable to exchange blows with any degree of damage with the Marion mauler. Snyder carried a two pound weight advantage tipping the scales at 145.

Don't Mention It

If Ray Gunshaw, Newark, possessed one ounce of fighting sense he kept it successfully hidden from fans in his six-round preliminary match with Mike Keller of Cleveland. The Cleveland lad smashed away at will on Gunshaw's mug but the Newark fighter managed to pull through without being knocked out, which is something to his credit.

Harold Williams, Marion, lofted his way through to a draw with Kid Sanderson of Newark in the opening preliminary. Sanderson put up a great fight showing flashes of exceptional speed.

PRINCETON TO PLAY IN OHIO HOMECOMING

State Athletic Board Sets Nov. 3 as Date of Annual Event

Columbus, June 26—Official designation of the Princeton-Ohio State football game here Nov. 3 as the Buckeye "Homecoming" has been made by the Ohio State University athletic board, it was announced today. Strategic position on the "at home" schedule and the general appeal of this leading intersectional contest led to this selection that is expected to appeal to the thousands of old "grads" who look forward to "Homecoming" as an annual event of major importance.

Of the varsity games to be played in the Ohio Stadium this fall, three are of major importance while the other two will also appeal since they bring two prominent Ohio teams to Columbus. Wittenberg opens the season here Oct. 6, followed two weeks later by the annual Michigan battle.

Another two weeks lapse while the Bucks are out of town and then the Princeton game. Iowa follows one week later, Nov. 10, which is designated as "dad's Day" and Muskingum rings down the local first string varsity curtain on Nov. 17.

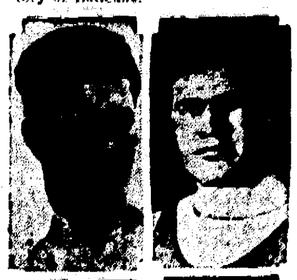
One of the great writers whom one envies in his style of expression is John Ruskin.

Motherin-law joke is scarcely heard any more. It always did lack humor.

Tunney to Hit "Lit" Trail; Author Wilder Is Mentor

Champ To Saunter Along Literary By-Paths of Old World

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 26—When the dust and the shouting die down after the heavyweight championship fight July 26 in Yankee Stadium, one of the sweating principals will turn his eyes towards the most amazing pilgrimage, perhaps, in all the history of fisticuffs.



GENE TUNNEY — TOM MEENEY

For Gene Tunney, who got Shakespeare such a swellbreak on the front pages recently is going lit'ry this summer in really a big way, HONEST! Win or lose—you can take the former-Marine's word for it—he is going to keep his tete-a-tete with Mr. Tom Heeney, then rush away to Europe on an intellectual vagabondage.

And for a trainer in his lit'ry roadwork along the by-paths of England, France and Germany, Tunney is going to have no less a personage than Thornton Wilder—Pulitzer prize winner, classical scholar and author of the best-seller, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

That both the titleholder and his scholarly mentor are eager to hit the Dictionary Trail is proved by the fact that Author Wilder will leave his teaching work at the fashionable Lawrenceville Boys' School to remain with Tunney during part of his training. Then he will break away and sail on July 7 for Europe, wherehe plans to rent the house of Henry James in the south of England. Tunney will join him there following his engagement with the brawny Australian.

"What do you and Tunney expect to get out of your trip abroad?" asked the reporter of Mr. Wilder.

"A fine time," he said. "We'll read aloud from books that we like; we'll talk, and Tunney will get away, for a while, from the admiring throngs."

A forfeit from the lowly Presbyterians last night only served to strengthen the lead of the Epworth Juniors in Sunday School League No. 2.

Lutheran created quite a stir in league circles by defeating United Brethren, 10 to 1. Previous to last night's games the Brethren crew were in second place of the league.

After allowing one run in the first inning, Bartch was master of the fray during the balance of the game. The Lutherans scored four runs in the opening frame and five in the third.

Lee Street jumped into second place of the standings by trouncing Forest Lawn, 11 to 2. Two runs in the fifth inning saved the Forest Lawn nine from being whitewashed.

Christians stayed in the second division in spite of their 15 to 5 victory over First Reformed. Six runs in the first frame were more than enough to win the contest.

On Wednesday night games postponed from last week and one protested fray will be played off. The following schedule was announced by the recreation commission:

Lee Street vs. Christians at Steam Shovel; Presbyterian No. 1 vs. Epworth Seniors at Lincoln; St. Marys vs. Epworth at Silk Mills; Trinity vs. Christians at Fairfield; Calvary vs. Wesley at Central.

Local Boxing Shows Take On Carnival, Circus Airs

BY EDNA S. DUTTON
Star Staff Writer

MUSIC with one's meals seems quite as it should be and just about what you expect when dining out, but when you get your favorite sonata or the very latest in popular melodies with your prize fights, you're getting just about all any one could ask for. It's being done this season in Marion.

Bright lights shaded in softly tinted silken hangings cast a mellow glow over the rippling waters of Crystal lake and the lake breeze in turn cooled the brows of some 500 fans in the dancing pavilion at Crystal Lake Park, gathered to witness the Eagles boxing show. Folks who weren't there probably think the lake breeze wasn't needed but if any body asks you, there was no one sitting around with ear muffs and mittens on, and no body clamored for the heat to be turned on. And we had music, good music and plenty of it, the Eagles band and Nixon's orchestra.

It was a good card and a genial crowd, the peanuts and popcorn were palatable, what more could one ask? The faithful were in their accustomed seats and the first nighters were made joyously welcome. The pavilion resembled a voting place on a general election day, for there were plenty of the fairer sex in evidence and they had ringside seats in the bargain. Mothers with babes in arms rubbed elbows with others who probably had their own family reared and well on the road to minding their own business.

And the gladiators, I always wonder about them. They must be modern Dr. Jekyls and Mr. Hydes to hate each other like they look to in the ring and beam genially at each other when it's all over.

And what do they think about between rounds and do they ever resolve, after a good trouncing, that never again will they take a mauling just to hear the roar of the voices of the fans in their ears and a handful of shekels? Personally I don't believe they hear or see a thing but the shuffle of the other fellows feet and the shadow of his mitts. That's about enough for the time being, to be sure, but the average fans forgets all this and gives orders like a traffic cop. They're probably going to keep at it until they win like some of the rest of are going to keep on going until we see a knock out.

GIANTS AND DODGERS GAINING ON LEADERS

National League Weak Sisters Find Soft Pickings in Phils and Boston

New York, June 26—Finding soft pickings in Philadelphia and Boston, the weak sisters of the National League, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers are gaining ground on the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals and the other western contenders.

Larry Benton won his twelfth victory and Bill Walker, Denver southpaw, turned in his first win of the season as the Giants swamped the Phils twice, 12 to 4 and 8 to 2. Fred Lindstrom of the Giants swatted nine hits in 11 times at bat, raising his batting average from .316 to .339. Del Bissonette hit his fifteenth homer as Brooklyn outslugged Boston, 9 to 3.

The Cards nosed out Cincinnati 5 to 2, on Pinch Hitter Blades' triple in the eleventh with the bases loaded.

Washington jumped to fourth place in the American League when their two southpaws, Braxton and Brown, stopped the Athletics twice, 3 to 2 and 7 to 2. Brown allowed only three hits.

Heinie Manush clouted two homers against Cleveland, but Eddie Morgan's four bagger in the tenth beat the Browns 7 to 4.

With Moe Berg driving in four runs, the White Sox beat Detroit, 8 to 6, and pushed the Tigers back into the cellar.

TWO GAMES

Two games were played in the County K. of P. league last night. Marion No. 402 defeated Waldo, 22 to 1, while Morral won over LaRue, 3 to 2.

Shortage of Funds And High Rate Fails to Stop Advance

DODGE REACTS TO SUIT

Movement of Market Is More Pronounced Today

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, June 26—In spite of the handicap of a seven per cent call loan rate, and a niggardly supply of funds even at that rate, industrial and railroad stocks made a series of moderate advances in the stock market today. Trading was about 40 per cent larger than in yesterday's dull session and the response of outside traders to the market's movements were more pronounced.

Simultaneously with the calling of a meeting of the Delaware and Hudson railroad directors, stock of that road soared 12 points to 197. No plan has been formulated for the distribution of the $83,000,000 received from the sale of securities, according to President L. F. Loree.

The motors stocks and the coppers were in good form, the latter responding with slightly higher prices to the advancing of Anaconda Copper company's dividend to $4 a year on the common shares. Anaconda gained three points and American Smelting was up two in fairly active trading. Dodge Brothers preference stock reacted a few points on the news of the temporary injunction restraining the merging of the company with Chrysler. Pierce Arrow and Studebaker showed little effect of their forthcoming merger, the terms of which have not yet been made public.

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Sweet corn was just slightly more plentiful on the markets today but was still in the luxury class, dealers asking 30 cents a dozen or two ears for 15 cents. The quality is fairly good but the sale light. Other vegetable prices were steady. New potatoes were holding at from 30 to 40 cents a peck. A few old potatoes still were on the market, but dealers reported few sales at 25 cents a peck. Hot house tomatoes were more plentiful and prices ranged from 15 to 24 cents.

Beets were holding at two bunches for 15 cents and the supply appears to be limited. Peas were plentiful and dealers were asking 15 cents or two pounds for 25 cents. Beans were holding at 18 cents or two pounds for 35 cents. Asparagus continues to sell slow at 10 cents a bunch, the quality only fair and the supply limited.

There was one change in price from last week in plums and apricots, both selling at 25 cents a pound. Blackberries were slightly cheaper today, dealers asking 20 cents a quart, a drop of 10 cents under the price of last week. Cantaloupes were plentiful and dealers reported a increase in demand at 10 and 15 cents. Washington apples were selling at 10 cents a pound.

Watermelons were scarce, only a few being on the market that were selling readily at from 60 to 75 cents each. The last of the week will find the supply larger, dealers say. The price is expected to remain about the same, however.

Grains opened generally steady today. Wheat was unchanged to 3-8c lower; corn unchanged to 1-2c higher and oats unchanged to 1-8c higher.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 26—After a good advance in corn, but a mere flash of strength in wheat at the opening those grains blew up and closed with losses for the session. July oats was the only future that got through the day with a good gain.

At the end wheat was off 1¼ to 1⅝c; corn was ⅛ to 1¼c lower; oats were ⅛c lower to 1c higher; rye was off ⅝ to 1¼c.

The action of the markets was in general a bitter disappointment to the bulls. At the close sentiment was intensely bearish again, but selling grains short may be dangerous business.

We are still in the month of June, almost invariably marked by erratic fluctuations. Today it is quite possible that the futures will look as strong again as they looked weak at the finish yesterday.

Weather Important

The weather is laying the foundation for conditions that will in all probability be interpreted as bullish on spring wheat if the present rainy spell is followed by a run of real Summer heat.

All the bear news on wheat is out. Bulls are timid. The market seems to be in the backing and filling stage when it is a dangerous buy on bulges, but quite as dangerous a sale on breaks.

It seems to be on the verge of turning into a decidedly bull position. The cautious trader, however, who feels inclined to buy will probably restrain himself until he sees evidence that the market actually has turned for good.

The danger is of buying prematurely, even if the buyer proves to be correct in the long run. Such sudden outbreaks as yesterday shake him out in short order.

Concerning Rye Situation

In considering the rye situation, the following from "Foreign Crops and Markets," Department of Agriculture publication, of last week concerning the rye crop in Poland is interesting.

"Judging from the relationship between the June 1 condition and the yield of rye in the past seven years, the conditions reported this year would indicate a yield of 11 or 12 bushels to the acre, assuming average conditions during the remainder of the season, compared with 10.5 bushels last year.

"Winter rye acreage sown this year is reported at 12,540,000 acres. Spring rye acreage is not yet reported, but is very small compared with the Winter crop. Assuming it to be equal to last year would give a total rye acreage of 12,662,000 acres.

"A yield of 11 or 12 bu on this acreage would give a harvest of only 138,000,000 to 150,000,000 bu, compared with a total harvest of 223,850,000 bu last year."

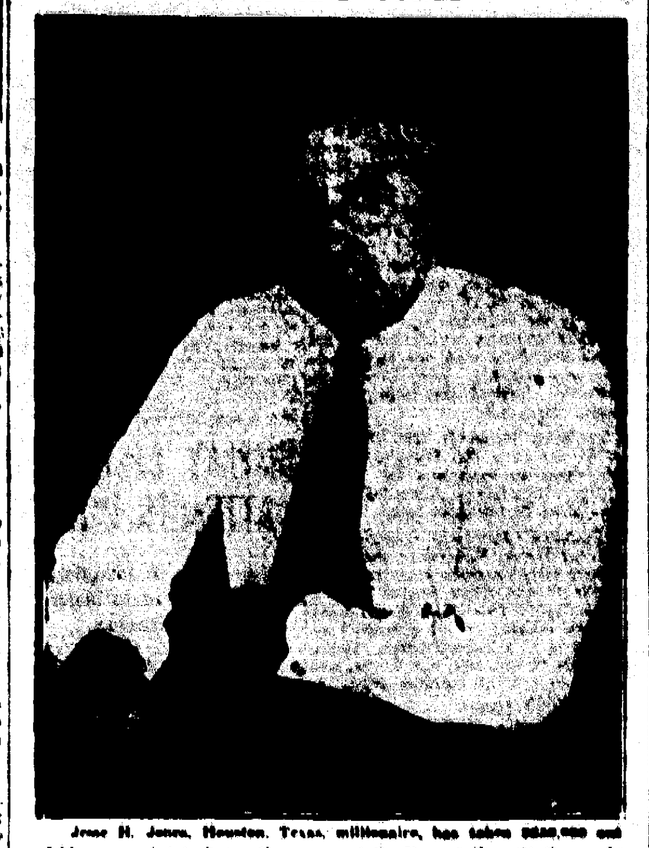
Fight On In Corn

The corn situation continues to seem to turn on the struggle between bulls and bears in the July future. That, as has been repeatedly remarked here, is the most dangerous future to trade in.

No matter what the ultimate price outcome may be in corn, this is a time of year when it usually is a better buy than a sale. There is probably a good deal short interest in all the futures now, and selling corn on bulges will not prove an advisable act in itself.

It will be remarkable if we get through the month of July this year without reports of damage to the crop, any more than usual. All conditions so give that impression strength at least.

"SMITH AND JONES"



Jesse H. Jones, Houston, Texas, millionaire, has taken $250,000 out of his own pocket to insure the success of the Democratic meet there. As a consequence of this service to the party he is suggested as a running mate for Al Smith on a "Smith and Jones" ticket.

Man's ears aren't made to hear from behind. Motor drivers have to remember this among all their other things to remember.

If a man fails to open the door when fortune knocks, he doesn't break it down with a battering ram.

Children don't more than half believe the fairy tales they read. But we allow ourselves day dreams, don't we?

If a woman once poses as a beauty it keeps her busy trying to live up to it.

BROTHER OF MARION WOMAN IS KILLED

Mrs. R. W. Andrews Leaves for Cleveland to Attend Funeral

Mrs. R. W. Andrews, 322 Edgewood-dr, has been called to Cleveland on account of the sudden death of her brother, Joseph Lorenz, 23, who died Sunday night at St. Elizes Hospital of injuries sustained in an automobile accident Saturday.

The accident occurred when young Lorenz, driving east on Harvard-av, Cleveland, crashed into a westbound street car to avoid hitting a woman driver making a left turn into a side street. The suddenness with which he applied his brakes on the wet pavement caused his machine to swerve into the street car.

Lorenz sustained a fractured skull and brain puncture as the corner post of his motor car was wedged into the side of his head. The machine was demolished.

Dr. Andrews expects to leave today for Cleveland to attend funeral services Wednesday morning. Burial will take place in that city.

The young man had been employed as assistant chief clerk of the freight department of the Big Four Railroad. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lorenz of Cleveland, two sisters, Mrs. Andrews and Kull of Lakewood.

SOUTH PROSPECT ST. WILL BE SURFACED

Strip Between Edgewood dr., and Corporation Line Acted On by Council

Owners of property on South Prospect-st, between Edgewood-dr, and the south corporation line will be required to pay $2.04 per lineal foot when the street is surfaced with asphalt this summer, according to an assessing ordinance passed by city council at its meeting last night.

The surfacing of the street was considered by council as a precaution against the destruction of the concrete base by the weather. The base was put down a number of years ago, the city and county joining with the property owners in the cost. Because of a shortage of funds, however, the top was not put on and deterioration which set in last year became so apparent this year that the covering of the concrete became imperative and a resolution providing for the surfacing was passed by council without the formal petition.

Corp. Francis Layton, 82-Year Old Veteran of Co. D., Had Many Experiences in Battles During War Period

Hardy Marion Soldier Preserves Health by Taking Daily Walks

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Star Staff Writer

A hardy veteran of 82-years of age, who attributes his state of health to the fact that he tends his own garden and walks miles every day, is Corp. Francis Layton, of Co. D, 4th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, who served as a scout with the Union army in many battles of the Civil War.

"The trouble with some old men," he states, "is the fact that they settle down, content that they have saved the Union, but make no efforts to save themselves. I walk every place and believe that everyone should walk more than they do."

Mr. Layton ran away from home and enlisted with the Union forces before he was eighteen. He was born in Philadelphia, Mar 3, 1843.

On his discharge papers he is described as being five feet five inches tall, dark complexion, dark eyes, and dark hair. The eyes are still dark and alert, but the hair is slowly turning white.

Guarded Washington

Mr. Layton was with the Army of the Potomac, detailed to guard Washington, and fought in the Battle of the Wilderness. He was present at the surrender of General Robert E. Lee. General Hancock was his corps commander, and Colonel Carl, brigade commander.

"Lee was a fine looking man and a splendid general. He would have been the leading general of the North, if his sympathies had been with the Union," is the opinion of the old soldier who was not more than 75 feet from the Southern army general when he surrendered to Grant.

The veteran carries rebel buckshot in his left arm and side, and a shell bursting at Spottsylvania Court House cut a large hole in his left hip. Despite these three wounds, Layton was never in a hospital, always being taken care of by the army doctors.

Mr. Layton had many thrilling experiences with the Union army and once he was captured by Confederate soldiers. His capture came when he was on a scouting trip with, David Yager, a brigade scout.

Captured by Rebels

When the two started the trip through a woods to gather information on the enemy, it was raining and the scouts were uncertain as to the whereabouts of the rebel army, Layton relates. Before they had proceeded far, four Confederate soldiers "covered" the two men with their guns and took them prisoners. They were marched a short distance in the woods to a cabin where the captors planned to spend the night.

The cabin was constructed with a door and window on opposite sides and a fireplace at one end. The captors placed themselves to guard all of the exits while the prisoners were placed in the center of the room.

Later in the night Yager noticed the guards were becoming drowsy and unknown to them planned an escape. He whispered his plan to Layton and under cover of the darkness, spread powder over the floor. At Yager's signal the powder was ignited and the two made a break for freedom, Layton overpowering the guard at the window and Yager the guard at the door.

Meet by Signal

The two scouts met in the woods a short time later by a signal planned before the escape. Continuing their reconnoitering, the two men came upon a cabin in the woods at daybreak. Creeping up to the fence, they made their plans for obtaining food. Just as one was about to leap the fence and make inquiry, four southern army soldiers rode up to the house and talked with the inhabitants for a few minutes. As soon as they had gone, Yager went to the house and Layton was left to guard his approach from the rear. Yager succeeded in his mission and both were treated to a large helping of corn pone.

Not long after this, Layton's outfit was sent on a forced march, and given one day's rations, he relates. For three days and nights the men lived on this one day's rations of six hardtacks, a spoon of coffee, a little sugar, and fat bacon. On the fourth morning they killed one of the pack mules, and because of the danger in lighting a fire and disclosing thier location, they ate it raw. "When a man's been marching that long, and is insane with hunger, he'll eat anything," declared the Marion participator in this eating episode.

Hear "Yankee Doodle"

That night, after hours of wandering about and plunging through the woods, the strains of "Yankee Doodle" played by the larger Union Army, led the men back to their own camp.

At Petersburg a rebel sniper was particularly adept at killing men stationed as Union pickets. Two of the northern army were killed on duty, and finally it was necessary to ask for volunteers to undertake the task of picketing the post. Five other men and Layton volunteered, fully aware of the danger.

Layton and his comrades piled up discharge shells and cautiously peered over the top of their barricade to locate the sniper. The sharpshooter at the time was putting on his coat and had his back to the observation point. In a flash, Layton and the other members of the detail fired at the man.

Nothing To Brag About

"Men say they shot other men during the war. I don't believe it," affirmed the veteran. "At the same time I fired at that man my comrades did the same thing. You might point your gun straight in the face of a man and fire, but maybe a half dozen more men shot at the same time. Who killed him? No one can say that he did, and furthermore, it is nothing to brag about if he did," is the sage philosophy of this veteran.

At Reams Station, the Union forces with 150 men and 250 rebel cavalrymen met on the skirmish line. Being outnumbered almost two to one, the northern men awaited the orders of their officers. The southern men charged out of the woods down upon the Union men.

Many of the furiously charging rebels went over the heads of the kneeling Union boys, and one as he "sailed" over the head of Layton, struck downward at him, his saber cutting off half the barrel of Layton's gun, gashing the first finger on his left hand, and grazing the top of his head. In a dash, Layton raised his gun and shot the horse from under the man. Both man and horse fell just back of Layton, the horse dead, but the rebel unharmed.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away a count showed that only 15 or 20 of the southern men had escaped, the others killed, wounded, or taken prisoners. Only 22 of the northern boys had been killed.

Layton's Were Fighters

It is in the blood of the Laytons to fight. Mr. Layton's grandfather, was a dispatch carrier for George Washington during the Revolution, and was hanged by a British soldier when he refused to disclose the contents of a message he was carrying.

Mr. Layton's father was a soldier in the Mexican War, and although not quite positive of the fact, Mr. Layton says he believes his father fought under Jefferson Davis.

When he was 12 years old he and his family moved to a farm in Hardin county. More than 30 civilized Indians of the Wyandot and Round Head tribes had taken over land on the back of the Layton farm, and Francis remembers clearly of playing with the little Indian boys and girls, and the medicine man who healed his mother when other doctors had given her up to die.

In 1871 Mr. Layton married Miss Anna Marigold of Hardin County and of their four children, one, Mrs. Charles Bell, of Hillsdale, is living.

Mrs. Bessie Miller of this city became the wife of Mr. Layton in 1897, and since the passing of her aunt, Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Layton still run the farm.

PASS ORDINANCE FOR SEWER CORRECTIONS

Second Step in Elimination of Rock Swale Ditch and River Pollution Taken

The second definite step in correcting the pollution of Rock Swale ditch and the Little Scioto river from raw sewage, in compliance with an order from the state board of health, was taken by city council at its meeting last night, when a bond ordinance providing for $6,650 was passed.

The money will be used in correcting bad sewer connections discovered by Building Inspector Carl Tozier whose appointment by council, was the first step in the correction of the trouble. The repair of a broken connection in the sanitary sewer on Uncapher av., which, according to the inspector, permitted sewage from 400 homes to enter into the storm water sewer, will be one of the repair jobs to be paid for out of the money. The work has already been done.

The broken sewer was the most flagrant violation of the sewer code yet discovered by the inspector. In order to avoid the trouble of removing a section of sanitary sewer which had become stopped up, the sanitary tile was broken off, permitting the raw sewage to flow into the storm water sewer which empties into Rock Swale ditch and hence into the river.

Conditions almost as bad exist in the northern part of the city, the inspector said today, and with the correction of these, it is believed the pollution of the river will have been reduced sufficiently to come under the order of the state health department. Each individual house connection is being checked by the inspector as the taps are made, to see that the sanitary connections are tapped into the sanitary sewer, thereby preventing a further pollution of the river.

TWO MORE HYDRANTS

Will Be Placed on Powhattan and Thompson Sts.

Two additional fire hydrants were provided for by city council at its meeting last night when a resolution authorizing The Marion Water Co. to install a hydrant in front of lot No. 12,056, Powhattan st., and another on Thompson st., 660 feet north of Silver st., was passed.

Council also provided an additional $300 in the payroll for labor for the service department when an ordinance transferring the sum of $400 from the account for street cleaning and $500 from the account for raising sidewalks, to the payroll account. It was explained by Service Director Benedict that $2,000 had been appropriated in the fund for raising sidewalks and that much would not be needed. He also stated that the service department would start raising sidewalks next month.

MEAT BURNS

Neighbors Call Firemen When Smoke Pours From Windows

Burning meat gave firemen from central station their second run of the week yesterday afternoon when smoke pouring from windows at the home of John Barford, 186 Chicago av., caused neighbors to believe the house was on fire and called the fire department.

A piece of meat burned to a crisp, and a hole melted in the bottom of an aluminum kettle was the extent of the damage. Firemen from the central station responded to a similar alarm from the home of C. D. Nurance, 328 Thew av., Sunday morning, where a piece of burning meat had filled the house with smoke.

AIRPORT SURVEY TO BE MADE WEDNESDAY

City Council Committee Plans to Visit Fields with Junior Chamber Men

...ding field. In addition to containing approximately 36 acres, the ... was level, was on a public highway and was not crossed by wires. ... trees in McKinley park offered the ... direction and these, he said, would ... a serious handicap.

Needed on Highway

...tioned by Councilman Prettyman ... the advisability of establishing a ... g field on a highway because of ... emptation of motorists to park ... the road. Whysall said one of ... most urgent recommendations of ... department of commerce was that ... field be located along a highway, a ... line or an interurban line.

That the city follow as closely as ...sible the recommendations of the de...rtment of commerce in selecting a ... was urged by Richard Barnhart, ... of Mrs. Harry Barnhart, S. State ... and secretary and treasurer of the ... Cleave Airplane Co. of Dallas, ...xas, who is on a visit here. Mr. Barnhart has been flying for the past ... year.

In answer to a question by Council...n Starr as to the probable cost of ... field, Mr. Whysall said the land ... th of the city could be leased for $5 an acre a year. The rates on some ... the other sites, he said, were somewhat higher. A field east of the city and another to the north, were being considered. Mr. Whysall said, although the field to the south of the city was perhaps the mo... desirable.

That no hangars be built at the present time, was recommended by Mr. Whysall. He urged that just the field be leased at the present time, the building of hangars to be left to the future development of airplane travel.

That the land be leased and not purchased at the present time, was suggested by C. H. Conley. "I believe the ... is here for the leasing but not the ... hase of land for a landing field," Mr Conley declared. "Time may bring a number of changes in the airplane world and I believe it would be the best policy for the city to lease the ground for a period of five years with the privilege of buying at the end of that time."

At the conclusion of the talks by members of the chamber, the members of the finance and building committees were appointed by President Murphy to investigate the project and to meet with the chamber committee. Evidently satisfied as to the need of a field, the committee announced it would meet with the chamber committee Wednesday morning.

A. H. Williams, R. E. Prettyman and J. M. Schneider constitute the membership of both the building and finance committees.

MIDDLE ROAD PLANK TO BE COMPROMISE

Democrats' Scheme to Give Both Wets and Drys Equal Chance

Attending were Senator Glass of Virginia, former Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels of North Carolina and representatives of Tennessee and Florida.

The conferees approved a dry plank and selected Moody to wage the fight for it in the platform committee. The substance of the plan declared that the Democratic party endorses the Eighteenth amendment and pledges itself to strict enforcement and observance of laws passed in pursuance thereof. The fight for this plank will constitute the anti-Smith coalition's last ditch to stop the New York governor's nomination.

The short platform gospel has spread like wildfire among the leaders and Senator Walsh of Massachusetts announced he and Senator Caraway of Arkansas would submit a platform consisting of but 25 paragraphs. All the subjects except prohibition, farm relief, trusts and corruption will be covered in paragraphs of three sentences each.

Final work of dressing up the platform gets under way this afternoon with the first meeting of the platform committee. After an open session to hear proponents of various planks, a subcommittee probably will sit during the night, in the hope of getting the platform ready for the convention by tomorrow.

STREET FLOODED

Autoist Strikes Fire Plug To Avoid Hitting Woman

Water pouring from a broken fire hydrant converted East Church st., in the vicinity of Greenwood st., into a miniature lake early last night and several hundred thousands of gallons of water poured over streets and sidewalks before repairs were made by employes of Marion Water Co.

The hydrant was broken off by a motorist who turned out to avoid striking a woman pedestrian. Witnesses to the accident told water officials that a man, whose name was not learned, was driving east on Greenwood st., and when, in attempting to avoid striking a woman pedestrian who was crossing the street, swung his car out, crashing into the fire hydrant which was broken off by the force of the collision.

JAMES C. JOHNSON DIES IN FLORIDA

Prospect Resident Succumbs at Winter Home; Funeral Thursday Afternoon

Prospect, June 26—Funeral services for James C. Johnson, of this place, who died suddenly of heart trouble Friday at his winter home, Merritt Island, Fla., will be held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the Methodist Church here. The services will be in charge of members of the Masonic Lodge and the sermon will be delivered by the pastor, Rev. O. E. Smith. Interment will be made in the Prospect cemetery.

Mr. Johnson had been in failing health for some time. He spent a part of the time Friday morning hoeing in the garden at his home and was found dead about noon by members of his family, sitting under an orange tree. It was thought he had been dead about two hours.

Mr. Johnson was born in Hancock county, Jan. 2, 1868, the son of Peter S. and Mary Jane Johnson. In November 1890 he was married to Miss Emma Behrnes, whose death occurred two years after the marriage. June 14, 1893 Mr. Johnson was married to Mrs. Lucy Lawrence Welsh, who survives with one stepson, Ray Welsh, of Merritt Island; one sister, Mrs. Henry Lauer, of Prospect; two brothers, Charles Johnson, of Green Camp, and Ray Johnson, of Richwood, and two step-grandchildren. Mr. Johnson was a member of the Methodist church and the Masonic and Modern Woodmen lodges.

The body arrived in Prospect this morning and was taken to the Drake funeral parlors where it will remain until 12 o'clock Thursday when it will be removed to the Methodist church.

"ONE MAN" CARS ON CITY TROLLEY LINES

Center St. Service Being Operated by Combined Motorman and Conductor

All Marion city trolley cars are being operated as "one-man" cars today. The change however, affects only the Center and Davids-st lines through the business district, it was said today by E. C. Mackan, city superintendent of the C., D. & M.

The State and Main-st lines and the east and south ends of the Center and Davids line have been operating for some time with a combined motorman and conductor.

Resignation of several employes of the C., D. & M. due to the discontinuance of the street railway lines in October made it necessary to place all cars in charge of one man, according to Macken.

FRIENDS STILL HOPE

Reed's Chances Rests on Ability To Stop Smith

Houston, Tex., June 26—Senator James A. Reed will stake his hope of getting the Democratic presidential nomination solely on his friends and their ability to corral enough votes to "stop" Al Smith, and then to swing the pendulum toward a Reed victory.

"There is no likelihood that Senator Reed will take the floor of the convention and make a speech," one of his lieutenants declared emphatically today. "Of course, the Missouri delegation could arrange for him to have a seat in the convention, thus giving him an opportunity to address the delegates.

"The senator feels that it would not be a dignified proceeding."

front. No speeches in Houston can change that.

"Some folks think the governor may not get over big with the South. They believe that old crack about a New Yorker thinking everything ends after you leave Two Hundred and Forty-Second st. No native New Yorker ever thought that. It's the fellow out on the road with a line of samples who gets into New York for 24 hours every once in a while who feels that way about the west and south.

As To Vice Presidency

"Whom do I think should be nominated for the vice presidency? Frankly, I'll have to leave that to someone else. I do believe he ought to be a man with presidential measurements. He shouldn't be merely a man with strength enough to pick up a gavel and say, 'Let's call the roll.' I don't know General Dawes very intimately, and I am not here to look after his interests, but to save me, I can't imagine why he wasn't named the presidential candidate at Kansas City.

"Now, about the farmer, fellows. The farmers' welfare is the country's welfare. When you feed the farmer you're feeding the city fellow. Candidly, I don't know a lot about farming or farm products after milk has been covered. The big job in New York is to get milk to the tens of thousands of kids there who live off nothing but milk. I can tell you lots about milk, but little else about farming.

"I guess there are others like me here. So, I think we need for vice president or for some office high in the federal government a man who understands the farmer and his problems and can give him what he needs."

MRS. MARION TEAL IS ROTARY SPEAKER

Tells Members to Build Homes From Woman's Viewpoint

Building of homes from the woman's viewpoint was urged by Mrs. Marion Teal of Grand Rapids, Mich., at a meeting of the Rotary club at Hotel Harding yesterday noon. Mrs. Teal is in charge of the lumber show being held here this week.

Joseph Paddock of Chicago, lumber field man, also addressed Rotarians and promised them there need be no fear of any shortage of good lumber. He cited figures of the large amount of money being spent this year for exploitation and promotion by lumber associations.

Mrs. Earl N. Hale sang a group of three number during the meeting. Mrs. Hale, who possesses a charming voice and who is a newcomer to the musical circles of Marion, sang "Trees," "The Slave Song" and "Four-Leaf Clover."

Yesterday's meeting was the final session in the administration of President Jesse H. Mason. Clarence Brown is the incoming president.

Mrs. Foos who was also injured in the attack has practically recovered at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Bird, of Lakeas rd. She will likely be the state's star witness as she and Mr. Foos were alone when the attack occurred.

NEW YORK GROUP HAS ONE THOUGHT

Will Seek to Nominate Smith on First Ballot; Tammany Braves to Root

Houston, Tex., June 26—As the Democratic National Convention got under way today there seemed to be but one thought in the minds of the New York delegates and the 100 Tammany braves who came down here to root for their idol, Gov. Al Smith, it was:

"Nominate Smith on the first ballot."

While the Smith leaders continued to insist they would not resort to any steam roller methods to put the New York executive over on the first roll call, they admitted, however, that nothing would please them more than to have the governor nominated on the first ballot.

"Of course, what happens on the first ballot is entirely up to the delegates, but I have insisted right along that we want to give every favorite son a chance to show his strength," said George R. Van Namee, pre-convention manager for Governor Smith.

SMITH-ROBINSON TICKET FORECAST

Boom for Arkansas Senator Growing by Leaps and Bounds

Democrats seemed in a fair position to realize it.

There will be a sharp skirmish on the prohibition plank in the platform but soothing influences have been at work and still working, and the majority opinion today seemed intent upon not letting either the rabid wets or the rabid drys run away with the convention, nor even to allow them to engage in any bitter and extended contest.

The Smith leaders from the wet east would like to see a wet plank in the platform. They make no bones about that. But faced here with the united opinion of the south and west Democracy against it, they are prepared to yield their views, and to accept "anything reasonable" along the prohibition line that is offered.

Sea Enforcement Pledge

Similarly, the extreme drys would like to hammer into the platform a plank endorsing the "moral righteousness" and the "moral principle" of prohibition. They are not likely to get that.

In the end, after the inevitable skirmish which the real leaders on both sides are hoping to make short and snappy, a law enforcement plank as strong or stronger than that which the Republicans adopted at Kansas City, probably will be agreed upon.

"Governor Smith's views on prohibition are well known," said one of his eastern spokesmen. "But Governor Smith stands for law enforcement and so far as we are concerned, there is no objection to a platform declaration that will pledge the party to enforce every law on the statute books."

A strong law enforcement plank, then would be acceptable to the eastern wets and would placate the southern and western drys. Of course, the radical fringe on both sides will be dissatisfied and may yet upset the apple cart and promote a bitter fight, but the chances at the opening of the convention today appeared against it.

NOBILE MAKES PLANS TO SAVE REST OF CREW

Explorer Throws Himself Into Work of Rescuing 20 Marooned Men

London, June 26—General Umberto Nobile, now safe aboard the Citta Di Milango Bay, today held a conference with the pilots of the three seaplanes using the ship as a base, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Rome states.

The commander of the dirigible Italia, which was lost while returning from the North Pole has thrown himself whole-heartedly into the task of rescuing the 20 men still marooned on the Arctic wastes.

He discussed with the pilots, one a Swede, the other two Italians, the feasibility of returning to his encampment with ski-equipped planes to rescue the four members of his party still marooned there, and the gallant Swedish flier Lunborg who was forced to join their isolation when his plane, the Upland overturned on his second trip to the encampment after he had rescued Nobile.

The motor chief of the ill-fated Italia, Natale Ceccioni, has also been rescued and is believed to be aboard the Citta Di Milano. He suffered a broken leg when the dirigible crashed on the morning of May 25.

It is believed their provision were exhausted by June 21. This was the party which started out over the ice after the Italia disaster on May 25 to try to find land.

Cheer from the Far North.

Cheering news has come out of the Far North. The world now knows definitely of the rescue of General Nobile and two of his companions of the Italia from the floating ice-field upon which they had been marooned for weeks. There would be still greater cheer had there been other source than Russia for the unconfirmed report that the ice-breaker, Krassin, had established wireless communication with Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, and his companions, who hopped off from Tromsoe, a week ago Monday, in the hope of locating the three divisions of the Italia's voyagers.

However, the situation today is far more hopeful than it has been heretofore. Three of the Italia's party have been rescued, showing the way to the rescue of the remaining members. Many more agencies than heretofore are being operated in the search for the party which floated away with the disabled Italia and the three who attempted to make their way over the ice to secure relief for the other members of the expedition, and search for the Amundsen party is showing increased diligence. Under such conditions, there is hope for the rescue of all who may yet be alive.

But earnestly as the world has hoped for the success of the various rescue parties, now that news of partial success has come it is somewhat overshadowed by the brilliance of the aviation feat of the Swedish aviator, Lieutenant Lundborg, who, unhesitatingly following the suggestion of Nobile, that airplanes be equipped with skies and sent to the relief of his party, not only blazed the way by landing safely on the moving ice, but also hopped off from it and carried Nobile and one of his companions back to the steamer, Quest, where their injuries were given attention, the two later being conveyed to the Citta di Milano. That his plane crashed on his second trip to the ice-field, making it impossible for him to continue his rescue work, in no way lessens the initiative shown and the splendid performance made by him on his initial flight.

As the wires said Monday, Lundborg's feat will go down in history as one of the most masterly achievements of aviation.

Ocean Travel Breaks All Records.

American travel to Europe, this year, is exceeding all expectations of the shipping people as well as breaking all records. It was expected that half a million Americans would visit Europe during the year. At the present rate of Atlantic travel, the total will come nearer to 600,000.

Some conception of the volume of traffic on the North Atlantic may be had when it is stated that last Sunday's shipping chart showed ninety-five liners at sea between northern North America and Europe, forty-three of them bound east with capacity passenger lists and fifty-two sailing westward to carry more Americans to the Old world. Nineteen liners sailed from North Atlantic ports for Europe last Saturday with every passenger accommodation taken.

A fine illustration of the present traffic situation was given by the New York City papers of Sunday, which told of the endeavors of a prominent New Yorker to secure accommodations for himself and wife. Despite the efforts of this New Yorker and his friends, who besought the various lines handling the fifteen liners to sail that day, not even so much as a berth was to be had, much less a cabin. Finally, hearing of their plight and realizing what must be their feelings—the three children of the New Yorker and his wife were aboard a vessel they had missed — the captain of the Hamburg-American liner, Hamburg, surrendered his quarters to them, that the family might be no longer separated than absolutely necessary.

It may be generally assumed that Americans going to Europe during the late spring and summer seasons—the vacation period—are made up of those who go for travel and those who go on business. But there is another element, and far from an indifferent one, which adds to ocean travel at this time. It is made up of those who take ocean trips purely for rest, for relaxation from business or other cares, and for quiet.

There was a time when ocean travel was at least considered one of extreme hazard, and there was a time, even since the advent of steam vessels, when it was, but that day is no more. Statistics show that, under present day conditions, when the average transatlantic passenger carrier is larger and stronger than ever before and equipped with every known safeguard, with the iceberg lanes watched and wireless communication in operation, with iceberg-detecting devices on ships and other devices automatically to warn their officers of the approach of other vessels in cases of fog, there is but one passenger drowned for every 20,000,000 passenger miles. As it was put at the international shipping conference in London recently: had Christopher Columbus crossed the Atlantic monthly ever since he discovered America he would have traveled but 16,000,000 miles and still have had 4,000,000 miles to travel before being drowned.

Thus it is that the sea offers a safe refuge to the tired business or professional man who wishes to escape from the demands made on him by his business or profession, as the case may be, and the hurly-burly of city life for the peaceful quiet the steamship affords, and thousands of them yearly make round trips for no other reason. The big steamship of today is a great floating hotel which assures a restful peace and quiet which no hotel ashore can offer.

"I note that the women delegates constituting the dry bloc down in Houston say they are going to sit up with Democracy until it recovers from the wet illness from which it is suffering," remarked the restaurant philosopher at luncheon today. A citizen of Chicago is dying as the result of having been shot in a restaurant up there when he protested the amount of his dinner check. Had he been wise he would have paid the check, but possibly he figured that he probably would be shot anyway.

In arguing for a permanent injunction to restrain Miss Thea Rasche from flying across the Atlantic under any management save that of his client, the attorney of Harold V. Hartwell pointed out that Hartwell had to finance the expedition, arrange for supplies and contracts and do all the worrying, while "all Miss Rasche had to do was fly across the Atlantic." Another way of looking at a simple little thing like an odds-on death risk.

BUT MAYBE SHE DOESN'T WANT TO BE RESCUED.

Ills of Childhood.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Years ago a good many physical ailments were not understood. It was not unusual to group together several ailments which are now recognized as separate and distinct diseases. Pneumonia, for instance, is now divided into several different "types."

Bacteriology, the science dealing with germs, has revealed the true nature of a good many diseases. It has proven that some of those which were formerly counted as separate diseases, are really identical.

As an example, let us consider the old-fashioned "membraneous croup," as it was called. This is now recognized to be diphtheria.

There is another disease which used to be called "false croup." It wasn't croup at all. Now it is referred to as "spasmodic laryngitis."

The larynx is the part of the throat between the base of the tongue and the windpipe. It is lined with mucous membrane and, like such membrane elsewhere, this is a tissue which is liable to become inflamed.

Children between the ages of two and five are most likely to be attacked by croup. It is preceded for a couple of days or less by running of the nose, slight cough and, possibly, a little fever. It may be thought the child has a mild cold.

In other cases there may be no warning signs. The attack may come on with great suddenness.

In the early part of the night, usually after the first sleep, the child is aroused from a sleep which may have been natural and undisturbed. He awakens with a loud and barking cough. It is a peculiar, metallic cough.

There is very marked difficulty in breathing. Every breath seems harsh and whistling. The swelling of the membrane leaves little space for the entrance and exit of air.

The face becomes flushed. The skin is hot and the pulse is rapid. The child gives every evidence of fear, as well as suffering. He cries, is very restless and wants to be carried. In an hour or so the symptoms improve and the breathing is less difficult.

The attack may be repeated the next night and perhaps for two or three nights.

In the treatment there are two things to be accomplished. The first and immediate thing is to overcome the spasmodic closure of the throat. Then the inflammation may be treated.

If hot water can be had, fill a tub with it, at a temperature of about 100 degrees. Keep the little patient in this for a quarter of an hour. Be very careful not to scald the child.

Sometimes a hot foot-bath, with a tablespoonful of mustard in the water, will relieve the symptoms. This may be enough to give complete relief.

The common household treatment is to give an emetic. For this purpose syrup of ipecac alone or with syrup of squills is a favorite remedy. But your doctor should advise you about this.

Editorial Comment.

A REAL PEACE PARLEY.

Secretary Kellogg has invited twenty-one nations to a session authorized by a resolution voted at Havana. He and former Secretary Charles E. Hughes will represent the United States and the delegates will convene early in December.

When this important body has assembled there will be effort made to negotiate a convention for obligatory arbitration of judicial disputes in the Americas.

This is something worth while; it suggests practical idealism. With Charles Evans Hughes participating it may be expected that the relations between the United States and the southern republics still further will be improved and advanced, because of his acquaintance with Latin-American problems and his high standing with all the nations of Central and South America.

Hughes is to these countries what Morrow is to Mexico. They are two Americans who have done more for better understanding with these sovereignties than all the statesmen above or below the Rio Grande and the Isthmus in fifty years.

At this important conference it will be sought to adopt an arbitration treaty which will carry out with reference to this hemisphere the ideals embodied in the movement of Secretary Kellogg to have the United States adopt as many arbitration and conciliation pacts as possible with the nations of the world, and to obtain in addition general adherence to a multilateral treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy.

This is the proper approach; it is infinitely preferable to the weird suggestions of Senator Borah and all the pacificist organizations of absurd altruism.

The Havana conference, under which the present conference is being called, defined the minimum limits which the pan-American nations were ready to accept as a basis of a treaty, and the task of the present conference will be to seek to enlarge this as much as possible.

So there is hope for the rational abolition of war so far, at least, as the Western hemisphere is concerned; and that should be enough to satisfy the prating pacificists of America.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Way of the World.

The case of "Mr. John Goodman" was debated at the editors' convention in Washington recently. Mr. Goodman is the name given to a supposedly eminent and respectable citizen who is caught in a raid on a disreputable roadhouse or is picked up in some equally unfortunate circumstances. Mr. Goodman has a wife and family. Shall the editor print the story of the escapade or shall he save Mr. Goodman's reputation?

There are arguments on both sides. Printing the story is hard on the wife and family, but the publicity may save a lot of John Goodmans who may make up their minds to change their ways.

John Todd, an Englishman whose business was to survey buildings thought to be dangerous, has resigned. He served notice on the British public that St. Paul's cathedral was not what it ought to be. He got so much criticism for telling the truth about buildings that he quit his job.

It's not hard to understand about John Todd. Tell the truth to people and they won't like it. They'll stop their ears and flee far to escape the truth. We care little for hearing it. We want to hear what we want to hear.

About Small Telescopes.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"There are telescopes advertised for sale, 'made in France,' [illegible] extended 41½ inches, diameter of object-glass 2½ inches, magnifying power forty-five times; there are others, thirty-five power, fifty-six millimeter diameter objective, length extended 42½ inches. Prices from $18.50 to $24.50. When purchasing tools pertaining to my trade I know how to buy, but in picking out a telescope I am stuck. I am considering the purchase of one of these glasses, but how am I to tell if it will prove satisfactory, and can I get a glass worth while at these prices?—E. W. Herker, Yonkers."

I assume that you wish to use the telescope for astronomical observations and, having in my younger days been in a similar perplexity, I am glad to give you the result of my experience. Very good small telescopes of from 2½ to three inches diameter of object-glass have been made in Europe for many years. But those that are the most useful for observation of astronomical objects are not "folding" ones, such as you describe, but little telescopes in brass tubes, three to three and a half feet in length, mounted on tripod stands, in what is called the "alt-azimuth" manner, which gives facility of movement both horizontally and vertically. These telescopes are suitable for use with magnifying powers as high as 100 diameters, or occasionally a little higher. Their price in prewar days used to be about $60 to $75, including at least two eye-pieces giving different powers.

I have never owned one of these glasses, but have seen some in the possession of friends that were truly of excellent quality. My first telescope was made in New York by an Irish genius, long since dead, John Byrne, who learned the art of grinding telescope lenses from Lewis M. Rutherford, a well-known astronomer of the past generation. It had an object-glass of 3⅝ inches, with several eye-pieces magnifying from thirty-five to 150 diameters. It was carried by a tripod stand and an "equatorial mounting," which is in some ways superior to the "alt-azimuth" in following the motion of stars. But it is also more costly.

The entire cost of my telescope, including the eye-piece and a "total reflecting prism"—which is a most convenient device enabling the observer to use the instrument without having his head in chancery in order to get his eye in the axis of the telescope tube—was about $175—more than forty years ago. It was worth to me every cent it cost. Dollars are not as expensive nowadays as they were then, and prices, I suppose, are proportionally higher. Frequently a good second-hand glass of high quality may be found. They do not wear out like automobiles.

But I do not wish to give the impression that a telescope with all the refinements that my first one had, is necessary for a beginner. The alt-azimuth mounting you ought to have, but you can dispense with the equatorial. You need not have quite so large an object-glass; one of two-and-a-half, or three inches will answer very well. You can get along with two eye-pieces, one magnifying say twenty-five or thirty times, the other seventy-five or one hundred. But you must be sure to get a "well-corrected" object-glass, and how you are to tell that, unless you can get the aid of some friend who knows something about telescopes, I am rather at a loss to say. But then your training with tools should have given you a correct eye and a good general judgment of things, so that you may do very well by studying such a book as Webb's "Celestial Objects for Common Telescopes," a classic on this subject. You may find this in any large library. There are also more recent, smaller works, which you may look over in a library or a scientific book store.

In speaking of more expensive glasses I do not mean to suggest that one of those that you are thinking of may not serve a good purpose for viewing such easy objects as the moon, some of the larger star-clusters, a few easy double stars, a glimpse of the rings of Saturn, etc., but if you want a real astronomical instrument I can not affirm that anything less than such a one as I have described would give lasting satisfaction.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, June 26—The roadhouses around New York are suffering a trade slump similar to that which hit the night clubs. They offer the same brand of entertainment—jazz, dancing, a few cabaret entertainers, and in most instances what you desire in a liquid way.

The isolation of many offered agreeable hide-aways for philandering husbands and wives. Fortunes were spent outfitting a few in an Urban-esque splendor. For several seasons they were heavily patronized. With few exceptions they are empty this summer.

The rise and fall of pleasure resorts in the metropolis presents a phenomenon. What is considered smart this season is for yokels only the next. For no apparent reason patrons will suddenly turn from a popular rendezvous and never return.

In my first years in New York the most popular night haunt in town was Healy's, Sixty-Sixth street and Columbus avenue. After 1 o'clock the crowds were so thick you couldn't get in with a court order. Police reserves were called out at intervals to hold off revelers.

And for no reason at all, crowds went elsewhere. Bustanoby's on upper Broadway, locally famous as "The Domino Room," had the same spurt of popularity. Everybody motivated by the idea they were somebody would be found in its black-and-white splendor after midnight. It, too, went the way of Healy's.

What happened to hectic cafes was faced in large measure by more sedate restaurants. Sherry's is almost alone among restaurants flourishing a decade ago to maintain its pristine smartness. The wisest among the restaurant owners have quit when they saw the handwriting on the wall.

Others who tried to stem the tide floundered eventually in bankruptcy. When New York is through with cafes it is through with a finality that can not be overcome. No cafe has ever made a "come back."

* * *

The only optimists holding out against New York's changing tempo are the oldtime cabmen. With their rigs at the curb, they still perch along the south wall of Central park like so many moulting sparrows—chirping, quarreling and shaking themselves at intervals. Their coats and hats show the polychromatic rustiness of years and their "Kerridge, sir," is the thin voice of an impossible hope. They are the defeated undefeated.

* * *

Horse-drawn vehicles are hired chiefly by starry-eyed couples who want to clop-clop along in the silvery moonshine of Central park or college cut-ups aching to do a few rodeo stunts on the avenue. The tragic side of the cabmen's fate is that many carry on out of sheer loyalty to their faithful horses.

* * *

The oldtime cabbie was a pal to the stage-out. He often salvaged him out of rough seas, drove him home and tucked him in bed, and was noted for his honesty. His friendships among the great were numerous. Every big financier of the nineties had his favorite cabman who ministered to him after business hours with the same solicitude of the present-day valet.

* * *

The uppish thing in valets seems to be the dusky natives of the Philippines. Most of them have been expertly trained by high army officers and reflect the precision of military methods. They speak only when spoken to, hear nothing or see nothing, and never care for a night off.

* * *

A friend has one of those British importations in valets and all the ram-rod dignity that goes with the calling. He is the "If I may be so bold, sir" type of the drawing-room dramas and to one brought up to consider a "hired man" as a mark of affluence he seems a honey. Yet my friends find him a terrible trial. In odd moments he sings hymns in falsetto.

* * *

Nothing is so annoying as a hymn hummer. I once boarded with a woman whose husband sat on the front porch until long after midnight indulging this habit in sonorous monotone. I not only lay awake plotting how to break him of this habit, but also of any other little habits he might have — including breathing.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

An Aboriginal Democracy.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Today I am going to take you with me on a visit to a tiny republic. First we must go to the Yellow sea, a gulf of the Pacific ocean which is situated on the northeast coast of China and the west coast of Chosen. There we will find the island of Tan Tubinsk.

Few people have explored this island, and little is known about it. For this reason it is remarkable, particularly because of its government. This is an advanced democracy, considering the fact that it grew of its own accord, with no outside influences.

The people living in this land are almost aboriginal. The only sign of an outside civilization is a few rifles, owned by a number of the inhabitants, and these are of a type that has been discontinued for over a hundred years.

It may be that the people of Tan Tubinsk are descended from the Tartars who conquered China and Russia, but for centuries the little island was unmolested by the outside world. However, the discovery there of a number of statues resembling the totem poles of the Indians of Alaska give rise to the theory that the people may be at least related to the Alaskan and northern Canadian Indians.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

GETS PERMISSION

E. V. Granger To Erect Building at Davids and Woodsts

After failing to pass on the suspension of the rules at two former meetings, an ordinance creating a commercial zone at David and Woodsts. was passed by city council at its meeting last night with Councilmen Schneider and Good voting against the proposal. The ordinance which grants permission to E. V. Granger to build a store building on the southeast corner of Davids and Woodsts. is the result of a recommendation by the city planning commission that the district be placed in the commercial zone.

It is said the room will be occupied by a chain store and that permission to build a similar store room on Silver-st near Leader-st., will be sought by Mr. Granger. A petition containing the signature of 14 owners of property in the vicinity of Davids and Woodsts., offering no objection to the building was presented to council.

GIRL TO REPRESENT MARION IN CONTEST

Miss Nyla Miller Leaves for Youngstown to Attend Y.P.B. Convention

As delegate from the Marion Young People's Branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Miss Nyla Miller left today for Youngstown, where she will attend the state Y. P. B. convention and will represent Marion in the grand gold medal contest. Miss Ula McNamara of this city will also participate in the gold medal contest, and Miss Bernice Howison of Waldo, who was awarded the grand gold medal in the oratorical competition at the convention two years ago, will take part in the diamond contest.

The fact that Ohio won high honors in the Wall of Defense contest conducted among Y. P. B. unions this year, was announced today by Mrs. John Newby, city chairman of the Y. P. B. Each union in each state contributes a "brick" to the Y. P. B. "wall of defense" for every 10 members it enrolls. Ohio this year had 36 bricks, Marion having had the honor of giving the state its first brick of the year. Southern California was second with 15 bricks for the year.

Marion contributed three of the 36 bricks for this state signifying that they enrolled 30 new members during the year.

THE MACHELL

Aged 6 months

You Would Naturally Choose a Mellow Flavor

Just as you select a ripe, red apple for the deliciousness of the full-flavored fruit, you choose a beverage that has been matured by careful ageing. The flavor is bound to be better.

Like fine wine, ginger ale must be aged, and years ago we discovered that 6 months is exactly the right period. Then you secure that rich, ripe mellowness; the full flavor of fine ingredients skillfully blended by a secret formula known only to the Cliquot Club Company—the result of over 40 years' experience.

Not only for its flavor, but because it is wholesome and digestible, always demand rare old Cliquot Club—the ginger ale that is AGED 6 MONTHS.

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 37

Once I realized that I was in a very awkward predicament. For, not twelve feet away from me, John and Mary Cavendish were standing facing each other, and they were evidently quarreling. And, quite as evidently, they were unaware of my presence. For before I could move or speak I repeated the words which had caused me from my dream.

"I tell you, Mary, I won't have it." Her voice came, cool and liquid: "Have you any right to criticize my friends?"

"It will be the talk of the village! Your mother was only buried on Saturday, and here you are gadding about with the fellow."

"Oh!" she shrugged her shoulders. "It is only village gossip that you mind."

"But it isn't. I've had enough of the fellow hanging about. He's a Dutch Jew, anyway."

"A tinge of Jewish blood is not a bad thing. It leavens the"—she looked at him—"stolid stupidity of the ordinary Englishman."

Fire in her eyes, ice in her voice. I did not wonder that the blood rose to his face in a crimson tide.

"Mary!"

"Well?" Her tone did not change.

The pleading died out of his voice. "Am I to understand that you will refuse to see Bauerstein against my express wishes?"

"If I choose."

"You defy me?"

"No, but I deny your right to criticize my actions. Have you no friends whom I should disapprove?"

John fell back a pace. The color crept slowly from his face.

"What do you mean?" he said, in unnaturally quiet voice.

"You see!" said Mary quietly. "You see, don't you, that you have no right to dictate to me as to the choice of my friends?"

John glanced at her pleadingly, a broken look in his face.

"No right? Have I no right, Mary?" he said unsteadily. He stretched out his hands. "Mary—"

For a moment, I thought she wavered. A softer expression came over her face, then suddenly she turned abruptly away.

"Mary!"

She was walking away when John sprang after her and caught her by the arm.

"Mary"—his voice was very quiet now—"are you in love with this fellow Bauerstein?"

She hesitated, and suddenly there came across her face a strange expression, old as the hills, yet with something eternally young about it, as might some Egyptian sphinx have smiled.

She freed herself quietly from his hold and spoke over her shoulder.

"Perhaps," she said; and then swiftly passed out of the little glade, leaving John standing there as though he had been turned to stone.

Rather contentiously, I stepped forward, crackling some dead branches under my feet as I did so. John turned quickly, he took it for granted that I had only just come upon the scene.

"Hello, Hastings. Have you seen the little fellow safely back to his cottage? Quaint little chap! Is he any good, though, really?"

"He was considered one of the finest detectives of his day."

"Oh, well, I suppose there must be something in it, then. What a rotten world it is, though!"

"You find it so?" I asked.

"Good Lord, yes! There's this terrible business to start with. Scotland Yard men in and out of the house like a jack-in-the-box! Never knew where they won't turn up next. Screaming headlines in every paper in the country—damn all journalists, I say! Do you know there was a whole crowd staring in at the lodge gates this morning. Sort of Madame Tussaud's chamber of horrors business that can be seen for nothing. Pretty thick, isn't it?"

"Cheer up, John!" I said soothingly. "It can't last for ever."

"Can't it, though. It can last long enough for us never to be able to hold up our heads again."

"No, no, you're getting morbid on the subject."

"Enough to make a man morbid, to be stalked by beastly journalists and stared at by gaping moon-faced idiots, wherever he goes! But there's worse than that."

"What?"

John lowered his voice:

"Have you ever thought, Hastings—it's a nightmare to me—who did it? I can't help feeling sometimes it must have been an accident. Because—because—who could have done it? Now Inglethorp's out of the way, there's no one else; no one, I mean except—one of us."

Yes, indeed, that was nightmare enough for any man! One of us? Yes, surely it must be so, unless—

A new idea suggested itself to my mind. Hastily, I considered it. The light increased. Poirot's mysterious doings, his hints—they all fitted in. Fool that I was not to have thought of this possibility before, and what a relief for us all.

"No, John," I said, "it isn't one of us. How could it be?"

"I know, but, still, who else is there?"

"Can't you guess?"

"No."

I looked cautiously round, and lowered my voice.

"Dr. Bauerstein!" I whispered.

"Impossible!"

"Not at all."

"But what earthly interest could he have in my mother's death?"

"That I dont see," I confessed, "but I'll tell you this: Poirot thinks so."

"Poirot? Does he? How do you know?"

I told him of Poirot's intense excitement on hearing that Dr. Bauerstein has been at Styles on the fatal night, and added:

"He said twice: 'That alters everything.' And I've been thinking. You know Inglethorp said he had put down the coffee in the hall? Well, it was just then that Bauerstein arrived. Isn't it possible that, as Inglethorp brought him through the hall, the doctor dropped something into the coffee in passing?"

"H'm," said John. "It would have been very risky."

"Yes, but it was possible."

"And then, how could he know it was her coffee? No, old fellow I don't think that will wash."

But I had remembered something else.

"You're quite right. That wasn't how it was done. Listen." And I then told him of the cocoa sample which Poirot had taken to be analysed.

John interrupted just as I had done.

"But, look here, Bauerstein had had it analysed already?"

"Yes, yes, that's the point. I didn't see it either until now. Don't you understand? Bauerstein had it analysed—that's just it! If Bauerstein's the murderer nothing could be simpler than for him to substitute some ordinary cocoa for his sample, and send that to be tested. And of course they would find no strychnine! But no one would dream of suspecting Bauerstein, or think of taking another sample—except Poirot," I added, with belated recognition.

"Yes, but what about the bitter taste that cocoa won't disguise?"

"Well, we've only his word for that. And there are other possibilitits. He's admittedly one of the world's greatest toxicologists—"

"One of the world's greatest what? Say it again."

"He knows more about poisons than almost anybody," I explained. "Well, my idea is, that perhaps he's found some way of making strychnine tasteless. Or it may not have been strychnine at all but some obscure drug no one has ever heard of, which produces much the same symptoms."

"H'm, yes, that might be," said John. "But look here, how could he have got at the cocoa? That wasn't downstairs?"

"No, it wasn't," I admitted reluctantly.

And then, suddenly, a dreadful possibility flashed through my mind. I hoped and prayed it would not occur to John also. I glanced sideways at him. He was frowning perplexedly, and I drew a deep breath of relief for the terrible thought that had flashed across my mind was this: that Dr. Bauerstein might have had an accomplice.

Yet surely it could not be! Surely no woman as beautiful as Mary Cavendish could be a murderess. Yet beautiful women had been known to poison.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

I AM glad Younise is well again. I told Jubilee so when we woke up this morning before I poked him out of bed and let him down out of the window by the rope in his teeth. I think he was glad too by the way he wagged at least half of himself.

My ant said if Younise had died she would of turned all the colors of the snake which bit her, and my grandfather grunted and my ant turned and gave him a sour look and axed him what was on his mind and he said he was wondering if she would have a tattle on her till too. My ant said if she was to be insulted in her own brother's house she would leave the table, and my grandfather said if he couldn't speak his mind in his own dotter's house he would leave the table with her. He got up and went to follow my ant and she gave him a push and he landed on the lounge so hard he almost busted it, and my father and unkie went to work laughing. My grandfather said to my mother: "Mizzeh, girl, why did you marry that family?" and my mother took Annabelle Lee out of her chair and sot her on my grandfather's lap and went to take the dishes off the table. My grandfather sot Annabelle Lee on the floor and said, "No you don't, suppose she declares for Al Smith and me a republican?" and my mother just rumpled up his hair and took some dishes in the kitchen and I grabbed two pancakes and an egg for Jubilee and skun out.

I went and looked up and down the street to see if the super was coming to apologize to my ant before me and the bunch followed the cows to the pasture. Younise and Feeble and Maggie didn't come, so when we got to the pasture we went sunking and killed three and hung them up on a limb as it would rain. Then we went in swimming in the creek and were plastering each other with mud and it began to rain so hard it wetted our clothes before we could carry them under a tree. Then we got back in the creek and laid down with the water up to our ears so that none of us got wet but our heads, and then the sun came out again and we got our clothes and hung them on bushes in the sun. Some ladies came with baskets to hunt berries and we showed them where they were, and they gave us a nickel apiece to guard them from snakes. They said birds come to get berries and snakes come to get the birds, and that is how come there are always snakes around berry bushes.

When we had got our nickels and had token our cows home to milk there had not any snakes come around, and the super had not come to apologize to my ant. My grandfather said the super was waiting for my ant to cool off. I don't blame him.

APPLY COMMON SENSE TO HOUSEKEEPING

Two Minutes a Week Saves Costly Plumber Bills and Torn-up Floors

Slow-running drain pipes are the most aggravating of nuisances—except a torn-up floor and plumber bills. Both are unnecessary. Both can be avoided—thanks to Red Seal Lye.

Two minutes does it, once a week. Just shake a small quantity into hot water and flush out with more hot water. That is all that is necessary if you use Red Seal Lye. For Red Seal Lye is 97% pure lye. The quickest, surest, most economical made. It dissolves vegetable matter, matted hair, grease and rust as fast as water does salt. It leaves drain pipes clean, sanitary, free-flowing.

Keep one of the handy Red Seal cans in the bathroom and one in the kitchen. This saves useless steps.

And now (while you are thinking about it) put down "1 can Red Seal Lye" on your grocery list. Then make it a habit (like washing the kitchen cloth) to follow this simple rule of "2 minutes a week."

Never again will you have a slow-running, annoying drain pipe—or a plumber ripping up your floors to take a pipe apart. Two 15c cans of Red Seal Lye are a small insurance premium against such unnecessary nuisances.

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Finds a Strong Ally in Her Determination

"MARGARET." My father's tone was one that he never had used to me before. "Please do not pain me by repeating that speech again. And put the thought which it reflects out of your mind."

I looked up at him in astonishment. His voice had been stern but his face was even more implacable. Never before had he returned such a look toward me, and involuntarily I shrank back against my chair. Instantly the lines of his face relaxed and quick contrition sprang into his eyes.

"Did I frighten you, darling?" he asked. "Truly, I didn't intend to speak so harshly, but you frighten me when you talk about giving up your work, especially as I have a very keen suspicion that Richard is urging you to do so."

His words were a question, I found myself answering promptly.

"Yes, he is," I said simply.

He looked at me keenly.

"This catechism is as distasteful to me as to you," he said. "I think you will do me the justice to say that I never have tried to interfere with your life with Richard, have never questioned you, have never ventured to advise you, only upon one or two occasions in all these years, and then when the problems confronting you were no secret to anyone. But I feel very strongly that if you give in to Richard upon this point, you will make a very grave mistake, one that you will regret all the rest of your life. Richard is a good man, a good husband to you, but—I must say this, darling, he is unstable, he needs all your variety, all your mentality, to keep him interested."

"A good husband!" The words kept sounding in my ears. I wondered grimly what my father would say could he know that just before Grace Draper's death, and our discovery of her plot to murder Dicky, my husband had voiced the belief that it was I who was leaving a poisoned drink at his bedside each night.

It was a secret which I had kept religiously from my father, as I had from everyone who was not a witness of that night's tragedy. But it was a memory which never could be erased even though Time had dimmed it, and Dicky's remorse had won my forgiveness. But I trembled to think what the effect on my father would be should he learn of that awful untruth.

"It would me wonderful to have you here this Winter, my child," my father's deep voice went on. "I can imagine nothing more enjoyable for me. But I must think of you and of Richard. Please believe me when I say that in my judgment it is vital that you should accompany him to the city, and should keep up your work."

From somewhere I mustered the courage to venture a question.

"But, Father, I thought you did not approve of—"

"Of wives engaging in professionals? Theoretically, I do not. But when a brilliant woman is married to a man of Richard's temperament, it is almost a necessity for her to have some outside interest. A wife who devoted herself to domesticity would bore Richard to death."

The words were almost an echo of those which Lillian had once uttered, and suddenly I felt weary and discouraged. Why, after these years of faithful widowhood and devoted motherhood, should I have to worry lest my husband be bored with me? I did not believe that he was losing any sleep over the question of my possible ennui where he was concerned.

My father, watching my face, smiled with tender comprehension.

"I know," he said soberly. "It's a hard problem, that one. But I know you'll solve it, my darling, as you will manage the other one you will have to meet, that of the very patent personal interest taken in you by your employer."

As if she were a period ending his dictum, Katie appeared at the door, breathlessly informing me that "Meester Veritzen mit his boy and dot Miss Lincoln, dey downstairs."
